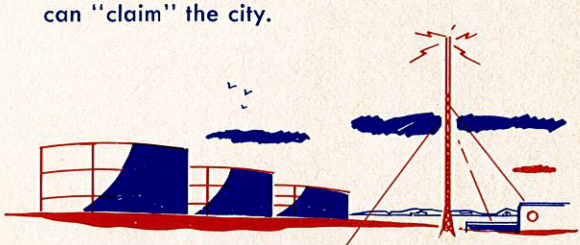
GREEN BAY —

Kaleidescope of industry

Green Bay is a center of the paper industry, but not a paper mill town. It's one of the cheese storing and shipping capitols of the world, but can't be called a cheese-making city. It's Wisconsin's largest Great Lakes oil storage port, but not an oil town. In fact, Green Bay industries take on many forms (203 in all) yet none can "claim" the city.



As a radio center, Green Bay serves the entire northern half of Wisconsin. In addition to broadcasting, it also helped pioneer the use of mobile radio communication.

Ideally located, on a beautiful big bay originally called "La Baye Verte" by the French, this busy city is a key distribution center for northeastern Wisconsin and the Upper Michigan peninsula. Always important as an inland ocean port, Green Bay looks forward to still further development upon completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Aside from industry, Green Bay is widely known as one of the nation's most enthusiastic sports towns — the home of the Green Bay Packers. The city takes great pride, too, in its extensive other sports and recreational facilities such as swimming pools, golf courses, etc.

A wonderful place to visit on business or for pleasure . . . any time . . . Green Bay is the kind of city that always makes you feel at home.
