The Scenic Flight in Douglas Ships Chicago . . . Twin Cities . . . Portland, Seattle

The shortest route between Chicago and the Pacific Northwest is also the scenic route. In the choice of three through flights daily, you have the famous daylight flight (east or west) that shows you twelve hours' worth of some of the most exciting scenery in America . . . Northwest Airlines' route sails through the heart of a vacation paradise. Flying both ways cuts precious days off travel time, saves time for vacation fun. Plan to fly often this summer—for business, for pleasure!

SEE GRAND COULEE DAM, an engineering wonder of the world, on your flight to Seattle. Look down on Bonneville Dam on the daylight flights Spokane to Portland. Coeur d'Alene, the Columbia River, Minnesota's 10,000 lakes—see them from the air.

DOUGLAS SHIPS now fly all of Northwest Airlines' main airways—super-powered, smooth-sailing giants that carry 21 passengers in roomy comfort. Attentive stewardesses, meals served free aloft, tipping taboo.

SIX FLIGHTS DAILY each way between Chicago and the Twin Cities offer fast, convenient schedules.

DULUTH-MINNEAPOLIS flights in 10-passenger Lockheed ships will soon offer rapid "commuter" service to head-of-the-lakes.

WINNIPEG-bound travelers have their choice of two convenient Northwest Airlines flights.

EXCELLENT CONNECTIONS are made at Chicago with planes for New York and other eastern cities.

. . . AND SURPRISINGLY LOW COST. The average cost per mile of flying in Northwest Airlines' big Douglas ships is only 3½¢—no more than any other first class transportation!
